

A song of Remembrance

Dedicated to my uncle, Private James Cram Turnbull, Argyll & Sutherland Highlanders, who was killed in action in 1942 at the age of 22 years.

Inspired by a Pilgrimage for Veterans to World War Two Cemeteries around Montecassino in Italy during October 2005.

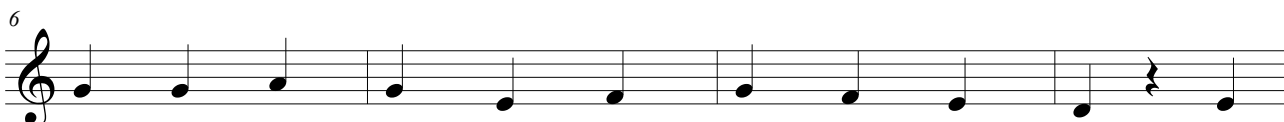

© June 2006 Lyrics & Melody
by Nigel J. C. Turnbull
nigel@remembrancedaysong.com
nigel@ntgraphics.co.uk

FOR THAT TOMORROW

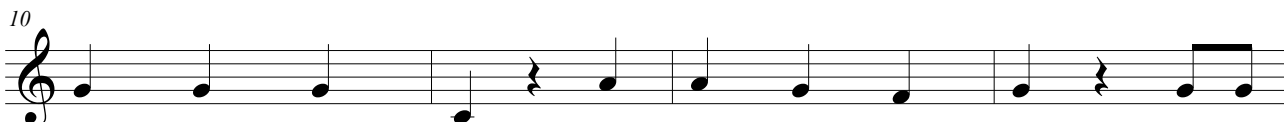

www.remembrancedaysong.com

(1) I stand here a - lone with loved ones to hand; my (1)
(2) A tree gives me shade in gar - dens so fine; a (2)
(3) A son kneels to touch his fa - ther's cold stone; a (3)
(4) Re - cor - ded in stone and gun me - tal grey, those (4)
(5) They left us a torch to ca - rry with pride and (5)

(1) tri - butes to lay on this sa - li - ent land. The (1)
(2) stone with in - scrip - tion that goes be - yond time. The (2)
(3) tear in his eye for a friend long since gone. A (3)
(4) he - roes in si - lence look down as we pray. The (4)
(5) hope for a fu - ture where peace can a - bide. I (5)

(1) voi - ces with - in as mem' - ries un - fold of a (1)
(2) head - stones are neat in rows mar - ching past and the (2)
(3) wo - man stands proud, with me - dals on show, for a (3)
(4) stan - dard is dip'd, the flow - ers are laid then the (4)
(5) dream of a life, that's lived with - out fear, it is (5)

(1) com - rade at peace now who shall grow not old. (1)
(2) names of the fall - en, for - e - ver will last. (2)
(3) hus - band who died that his chil - dren might grow. (3)
(4) mu - sic is soun - ded and hom - age is paid. (4)
(5) for that to - mor - row our peo - ple lie here. (5)

Please feel free to share/print this song and perform it at any non-profit venue.

Feel free to publish this song on your web site, or in print, as long as you add the following acknowledgement and link:

© June 2006 Nigel J.C. Turnbull www.remembrancedaysong.com

Should you wish to use this song on a commercial basis (for-profit) please contact me in the first instance at nigel@remembrancedaysong.com to discuss your requirements.